Prenatal Tests Wrong 85% of the Time, But They're Used to Kill "Disabled" Babies in Abortions

By Micaiah Bilger

Early prenatal tests for rare disorders often lead to thoughts about abortion for expecting parents. Sometimes, doctors and genetic counselors pressure parents to abort their unborn babies after a positive test, and both healthy and unhealthy unborn babies are killed in abortions as a result.

Now, a new analysis by the New York Times has found that some of the most common prenatal screening tests are not as reliable as parents often are led to believe and many healthy unborn babies may be being aborted as a result of false positives.

Examining five non-invasive prenatal tests, which involve drawing blood in the first trimester, the Times found an average false positive rate of 85 percent.

To conduct its research, the newspaper examined multiple studies and interviewed researchers about five of the most common microdeletion (chromosomal disorder) tests performed on pregnant mothers: tests for DiGeorge syndrome, 1p36 deletion, Cri-du-chat syndrome, Wolf-Hirschhorn syndrome, Prader-Willi and Angelman syndromes.

According to the report, experts said early prenatal tests for Patau syndrome (trisomy 13) and Turner syndrome (monosomy X) also have a lot of false positives, but tests for Down syndrome and Edwards syndrome are more reliable.

One of the problems with the high inaccuracy rates in the tests is that "there are hundreds of microdeletion syndromes, and the most expansive tests look for between five and seven," according to the Times. This means that not only are the false positives a problem, but the results also are not proof that the baby does not have the disorder.

Despite the lack of certainty, the tests are marketed as "reliable" and "accurate," the report found. The test companies do recommend follow-up testing to confirm the results, but parents do not always do this. More accurate tests come with a risk of miscarriage and can be expensive, so some parents go on the early, unreliable results alone to make a decision about their unborn baby's life.

One geneticist told the Times about a recent case where an early prenatal test came back positive for a rare disorder, so the parents aborted their unborn baby. Later, however, a follow-up test after the abortion showed that the unborn baby had been healthy, the geneticist said.

The report continues: "A 2014 study found that 6 percent of patients who screened positive obtained an abortion without getting another test to confirm the result. That same year The Boston Globe quoted a doctor describing three terminations following unconfirmed positive results."

The expanded use of prenatal testing has led to more unborn babies with disabilities being targeted for abortions. Recent reports in The Atlantic and CBS News found that nearly 100 percent of unborn babies who test positive for Down syndrome are aborted in Iceland, 95 percent in Denmark, 77 percent in France and 67 percent in the United States.

The deadly discrimination is getting worse with the expanded use of prenatal testing. The Telegraph reports a recent article in the European Journal of Human Genetics found that the number of babies with Down syndrome born in the United Kingdom dropped 54 percent since the non-invasive prenatal screening tests became available about a decade ago.

What's more, parents frequently report feeling pressured to abort unborn babies with disabilities. One mom recently told the BBC that she was pressured to abort her unborn daughter 15 times, including right up to the moment of her baby's birth. Another mother from Brooklyn, New York said doctors tried to convince her to abort her unborn son for weeks before they took no for an answer. Many say they did not receive adequate counseling about the disorder or the support available to families of children with disabilities.

Pandemic Makes Abortion Easier, But No Less Deadly

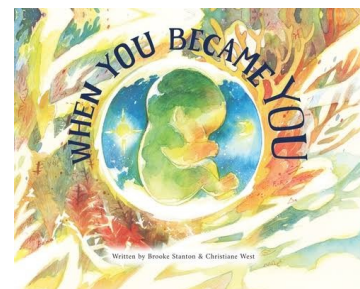

The Food and Drug Administration will permanently adopt a pandemic accommodation that allowed U.S. women to get abortion pills through the mail, the agency announced - despite recent evidence that drug-induced abortions are causing increasing negative health effects for women.

Ohio Law for Burial of Aborted Babies Too Much Trouble

In December of 2020, Ohio Governor Mike DeWine signed into law a bill mandating the burial or cremation of the remains of aborted children. But the ACLU is suing to have the law, which is set to go into effect in February, overturned. In an interview with WCPN, Freda Levenson of the ACLU of Ohio said that they have filed their lawsuit on behalf of five abortion facilities. "The law and the implementing rules are extremely burdensome and expensive to comply with. "It's very, very costly to provide cremation or burial for a small collection of cells." (Emphasis added). Someone forgot that a person's a person, no matter how small.

For Your Reading List

From time to time we come across an article or book that simply must be shared. Such is the case of a children's book, "When You Became You," a gorgeously illustrated and written by Brooke Stanton & Christiane West. One reviewer put it this way: "This is an adorable children's book for teaching children about the continuum of life. Illustrated with deep colors, it depicts human beings in the womb so that children can see what they looked like when they were beginning to grow and how they have grown into the child they are today. Spanning the pages, these illustrations are beautiful and allow children to really understand how they developed."

Thank you so much for all your fantastic public support for all human life from conception until natural death during all the AWESOME pro-life events in January! Thank you for attending and participating in the Rose Mass on January 19th! Thank you for ordering and lighting luminaries on the night of January 21st! Thank you for joining the 2nd Annual Motor City Caravan of Life once again on January 22nd!

Positive Signals from the Dobbs v Jackson Women's Health Oral Arguments on December 1, 2021

Justice Samuel Alito: "So there are... circumstances in which a decision may be overruled, properly overruled, when it must be overruled simply because it was egregiously wrong at the moment it was decided?"

Chief Justice John Roberts: "I'd like to focus on the 15-week ban because... it is the standard the vast majority of other countries have. When you get to the viability standard, we share that standard with the People's Republic of China and North Korea."

Mississippi Solicitor General Scott Stewart:

"...Justice Sotomayor, is that the fundamental problem with viability, it's not something that rests on science so much. It's that viability is not tethered to anything in the Constitution, in history, or tradition. It's a quintessentially legislative line.

Justice Brett Kavanaugh: "As I understand it, you're arguing that the Constitution is silent and therefore, neutral on the question of abortion? In other words, that the Constitution is neither pro-life nor pro-choice on the question of abortion but leaves the issue for the people or the States or perhaps Congress to resolve in the democratic process?"

Justice Amy Coney Barrett: "...Both Roe and Casey emphasize the burdens of parenting... the ways in which forced parenthood, forced mothering, would hinder women's access to the workplace and to equal opportunities... Why don't safe-haven laws take care of that problem? ...Are you saying that the right as you conceive of it is grounded in the bearing of the child, in the carrying of a pregnancy, and not so much looking forward into the consequences on professional opportunities and work life and economic burdens?"

Justice Samuel Alito: "Did any state constitutional provision recognize that abortion was a right, liberty, or immunity in 1868 when the 14th Amendment was adopted? Does any judicial decision at that time... recognize that abortion was a right, liberty, or immunity?"

Wee Care

Dear Friends,

Hearts, Roses, Love and of course, Chocolate! It must be February!

Our HEARTS are full of gratitude for all you do throughout the year for our precious babies. Whether it is arranging Giving Trees, organizing Baby Showers, purchasing tiny baby clothes, donating gift cards or monetary donations or crocheting beautiful, warm afghans - together it enables a little outreach program with no public funding to provide love, prayers and material goods to hundreds of moms & their babies each year.

ROSES - red roses have always stood for the pro-life movement. Roses may be found on signs carried by the youth at the March for Life in DC. They may be found at the cemetery where we buried five aborted babies. They may be found at the Rose Mass held every year to remember the 63.5 million babies who were aborted since Roe vs Wade in 1973. They may be found at a funeral home - a lone red rose symbolizing a beautiful life dedicated to fighting for the unborn. They may be found at our Celebration of Life Dinner - a beautiful reminder of all we have stood for in 51 years.

LOVE - so much love - The love for the cherished babies that compel people to provide for them - the love of the mothers who are overwhelmed that others care - the love of the treasured friendships - some over 50 yrs.! - made by people with one common passion - to protect the unborn. (The stories they could tell!)

We will never know how that love touched other lives. How many mothers chose life because they knew help was available (because of you!)

CHOCOLATE - yep! February wouldn't be complete without chocolate - 'nuff said!

So, my wish for you for February is that it is filled with much love and all the happiness you give to others. (And maybe - a little chocolate!)

Love, Karen

Youth Report

LIFESPAN sent one Red Eye bus to DC to the 49th Annual March for Life. Even though we had to jump over many hurdles to make the trip happen (restrictions in DC, restrictions in VA), "The Fellowship of Bus 3," as I fondly nicknamed it, was determined to go o DC taking all of us with them in spirit on the journey there and back! Instead of nine companions in The Lord of the Rings, the bus set out with 43 companions - a mix of Junior High, High School, College students, Chaperones, and Parents. They joined between 100-150 thousands of others from all across the country who wanted to walk peacefully and prayerfully in solidarity to the US Supreme Court to show their support for protection of Human LIFE from the very first moment of conception. Look for pictures and write-ups from our Marchers in the next newsletter!

LIFESPAN has updated its flier for the 2022 Be the Change Training Event (March 11th & 12th). See page 2 in this newsletter. The event is free! Donations will be accepted on both days, at both locations. You can begin registering for one of the days by going to the link provided on the flier. I look forward to seeing many of you there! It will be a great event for students of all ages, parents, families, teachers, youth directors, etc. If you have any questions, you can email me at the address below.

Until next time, Keep on Loving them Both!

Why “precedent” is No Obstacle to Overturning Roe v. Wade

By Dave Andrusko

It's important to remember that when thinking about Mississippi's "Gestational Age Act" that while observing "precedent" (stare decisis) ordinarily is important, the Supreme Court has reversed itself when it has made egregious errors.

Welcome to "Precedents Are No Obstacle to Overturning Roe v. Wade," an op-ed by Robert P. George and Christopher Kaczor. If there is a textbook case for overturning precedent, Roe—and its 63 million victims—qualifies.

George and Kaczor write:

In Roe v. Wade seven members of the Supreme Court of the United States imposed their moral belief that women have a right to abortion on the American people. Most jurists and constitutional scholars recognize that the decision lacked any basis in the text, logic, structure or original understanding of the Constitution. Never the less, Roe has been in place for nearly 49 years and the Court reaffirmed its basic holding in the 1992 case of Planned Parenthood v. Casey.

They list prominent instances where the Court has reversed itself. They quote the very liberal Erwin Chemerinsky who summarized several key reversals:

The power of these examples is that they are non-partisan. Liberals and conservatives alike can agree that the court was wrong in Dred Scott v. Sanford in holding that slaves are property and not citizens, in Plessy v. Ferguson in upholding separate but equal and in Korematsu v. United States in ruling in favor of the authority of the government to evacuate Japanese-Americans from the west coast during World War II.

They add "Overturning a Supreme Court ruling is scarcely unheard of or even particularly novel. The Court has done it nearly 150 times."

Having disposed of the canard that reversal is all but unprecedented, George and Kaczor further make the case that the High Court's abortion ruling are "not merely mistaken interpretations of the Constitution; they can scarcely be described as interpretations at all. They represent the sheer imposition of judicial will—the 'exercise of raw judicial power,' as liberal Justice Byron White said in his dissent in Roe."

One other of the many compelling arguments they make: Roe is as contentious and divisive today as it was in 1973, perhaps more so.

Roe supporters would have you believe the decision "settled" the issue. In fact, "The Court's unwarranted exercise of raw power did nothing to temper the division and much to enflame it. In that respect, as in others, it profoundly resembles Dred Scott v. Sanford, and deserves to join that infamous ruling on the ash heap of history." A very solid contribution to the case for overturning Roe.

“IT'S A BABY”

“STOP ABORTION!”

BILLBOARD CAMPAIGN JAN 2022

Billboards & Posters were visible in Detroit, St. Clair Shores & Pontiac as well as mobile advertising within 3 miles of each.

Thanks to a very generous family Foundation, we were able to create the billboard you see above.

It was placed in several areas in the Detroit Metro Area where abortion clinics are located.

Our hope is that those who see the billboard will rethink their thoughts of the baby in the womb. Call 248-816-1546 in Oakland/Macomb Counties or 734-422-6230 in Wayne County for more information.

From the President's Desk

Dear Friends,

There is an energy within the pro-life movement that I have not felt for a long time. It seems to have come from the hope that Roe v Wade and Doe v Bolton (which allowed legal abortion up to natural delivery) will be overturned. The hope of all pro-lifers involves a new case, Dobbs v Jackson Women's Health Organization, which will be decided by the US Supreme Court this summer. It is too long in this article to explain this case but, if the Supreme Court decides in favor of LIFE, the responsibility of abortion laws would return to the States. This is where it was before the infamous 1973 decision.

I am just as hopeful as others, but I am a realist. We will never be able to stop fighting this battle. In fact, the opposition is already working in the State of Michigan to change the Constitution of the State to permit unlimited abortion. Now, if it would come back to the States, our little preborn babies would be protected. The law on the books of the State of Michigan today state that abortion is illegal, except to save the life of the mother. The pro-death abortion proponents are already working to change that law if they need to. Money will pour into this State from Planned Parenthood, George Soros, Big Tech, Hollywood, and other organizations. It will be a fight!

Right to Life - LIFESPAN and all pro-life warriors will have to work together and work we will. It is more important than ever that Right to Life - LIFESPAN continue to educate and have programs that keep this issue in the public square. In January we had: The Rose Mass, Motor City Caravan for Life, Our Billboards (depicting human development in utero), and sent young people by bus to Washington D.C. for the 49th Annual March for Life. I thank all who participated in these programs and other programs our members organized through their churches.

Much will be happening in the next year. We will keep working to promote respect for all human life. I call on all our Right to Life - LIFESPAN family to keep promoting the cause, supporting our programs, encouraging your young people to attend "Be the Change" and always referring to the preborn human as a baby.

May God give us the courage to continue the fight for life: no matter how difficult it may be.

Petition Drive to Allow Unrestricted Killing of Unborn Children

By Beth LeBlanc

An abortion rights coalition filed language with the state on January 7th, 2022 to launch a ballot initiative that would amend the Michigan Constitution to “explicitly affirm” reproductive rights, including abortion, the group announced. The constitutional amendment would override a 1931 law that makes it a felony to administer medicine or use “any instrument to produce a miscarriage. The law is set to take full effect in Michigan if the 1973 Roe v Wade decision is overturned by the US Supreme Court. Note: This group seeks to change the Constitution of the state of Michigan to permit abortion at any time during pregnancy.

The ballot initiative language was submitted Friday to the Board of State Canvassers by the ballot group Reproductive Freedom for All, a coalition of the American Civil Liberties Union of Michigan, Planned Parenthood Advocates of Michigan and Michigan Voices.

The pro-abortion coalition anticipates that the US Supreme Court will overturn Roe and this effort is to negate the pro-life effect such a decision will bring about. This action comes to no surprise. There are no lengths to which abortion advocates will not go to assure that the unborn child is left unprotected, vulnerable and at risk. Be prepared for a long and bitter struggle.
