Why Do We Still March?

Our most important work is changing hearts and minds. The goal of the national March for Life is to not only change laws at the state and federal level, but to change the culture to ultimately make abortion unthinkable. We will continue to march every January at the national level until a culture of life is restored in the United States.

The Abortion Accounts of 26 Women Weep with Pain and Regret and Remorse

By Dave Andrusko

When there is even an ounce of honesty in them, any series of accounts of women who have undergone abortions will accomplish exactly the opposite of what proponents of “telling your story” believe it will. Instead of “de-stigmatizing” abortion, what we learn makes the average person even more skeptical of abortion, even more convinced it is a horrible “choice.”

A perfect example is a story in New York magazine (<https://nymag.com/news/features/abortion-stories-2013-11/>) which provided thumbnail sketches of the reasons 26 women had their abortion or abortions.

The overwhelming takeaway from Meaghan Winter’s story for me was sorrow. Abortion’s ugly truth is everywhere.

I was very much impressed with Winter’s introduction. Take this paragraph, for example:

“And yet abortion is something we tend to be more comfortable discussing as an abstraction; the feelings it provokes are too complicated to face in all their particularities. Which is perhaps why, even in doggedly liberal parts of the country, very few people talk openly about the experience, leaving the reality of abortion, and the emotions that accompany it, a silent witness in our political discourse. Even now, four decades after Roe, some of the women we spoke with would talk only if we didn’t print their real names.”

Again, I completely understand that the whole point is that the more often women tell their stories, in theory the less “stigma” will attach. But it’s not stigma that is running roughshod in many of their hearts but deep, DEEP regret. Which is why if you take the time to read all the stories, you come away aching for almost all of these women.

I will just cite three stories + a closing quotation from a fourth.

Right out of the box is “Nicole, 19.”

Her story is so illustrative. She’s convinced herself that by aborting their baby, it will show her boyfriend how much she loved him. It’s clear she doesn’t want the abortion.

The boyfriend goes back and forth – and forth and back. Nicole describes herself as “hysterical, and he said, ‘Okay, you don’t have to go back’ [to the abortion clinic]. I was so happy. Then he said, ‘We drove all this way. Stop crying, act like a woman.’”

She’s tired and gives in. And then some of the most remarkable 62 words you are likely ever to read:

“When I had the ultrasound, I asked for the picture and a nurse said, ‘Seriously?’ A month later, he said he regretted it too. When I cry about it, I cry alone. He thinks it would make me sad to talk about, but I don’t want our baby to think we forgot. I’ve never heard of anybody else having an abortion here.”

“But I don’t want our baby to think we forgot.” My eyes welled up the first time I read this, and they are again, now.

Another woman (“Red, 30”) tells of not aborting her first unplanned pregnancy (“I decided I couldn’t abort a baby based on a stupid decision I made”).

The next time she does abort, even though the boyfriend wanted to get married. (She doesn’t want to be “tied” to him “forever.”) So she and her mother go [where else] to Planned Parenthood.

She writes,

“I told them I already had a baby. The doctor acted like it was assembly-line work. I told Steve I miscarried. We dated another year. The secret was devastating. People might be more understanding if I’d had an abortion when I was living in a car in an abusive relationship. This time, I was on birth control, with a full-time job, a boyfriend. People might think I should’ve kept it, but I couldn’t.”

One other story (“Heather, 32”). She’d already had two unplanned pregnancies “and it never, ever, occurred to me to terminate those pregnancies.” Now she’s had two abortions. Heather writes of the first abortion that

Angels Above Baby Gowns

My Mom, Eva Louise Beaton passed away February 3, 2022 at the age of 94. I lived with her for almost six years after my father passed away so that I could take care of her. After she died, I was in charge of packing things up, donating items to family, St. Vincent de Paul, Salvation Army, and Habitat for Humanity. So once all the furniture, clothing, pictures, dishes, silverware and mementos were gone, there was one last very special item that I needed to figure out what to do with and that was her beautiful satin wedding gown from 1951.

I had it cleaned and pressed thinking that I would surprise my niece who was getting married this June with the dress that she could wear for her wedding. Turns out, it wasn't really her style and she had other plans so I still had to figure out what to do. I happened to mention it to a friend of mine at a birthday party for her mother and husband. My friend said that her niece worked for a hospital that had a program called Angels Above Baby Gowns that accepts wedding gowns and when she told me what they did with them, I almost started crying. She said they use the gowns to make tiny outfits for babies that are stillborn, miscarried or have died shortly after birth to present them to their parents as a respectful expression of love. I knew my Mom was smiling when I dropped the gown off and could hear her say, "Grandma Eva loves you little ones" ... In Your Honor, your daughter, Colleen

Angels Above Baby Gowns' mission is to provide emotional support comfort to anyone suffering the loss of a newborn due to a miscarriage, intra-uterine fetal death, stillborn or death shortly after birth.

Pray for Ohio

In depressing news, Ohio's Issue 1 was defeated 57%-43% on August 8 by voters. The result somewhat surprises with how "red" Ohio has voted in recent elections. Issue 1 would have required 60% of affirmative votes to pass any future amendments to the Ohio State Constitution. This is a prudent policy under any circumstance (The Founders required ¾ of states to ratify amendments to the U.S. Constitution), but it was proposed under the specter of an upcoming November ballot issue to amend the Ohio Constitution to promote abortion for all 9 months without limits. Sound familiar? Issue 1 passed with the support of the major urban and suburban counties of Ohio and pro-Issue 1 Ohioans were vastly outspent by the dishonestly named One Person One Vote group of abortion activists. One Person One Vote spent $15.9 million on ads with $13.7 million coming from outside Ohio. A group of wealthy pro-abortion coastal elites seeks to impose their will on a Midwestern state. Sound familiar? Yet this does not absolve ordinary Ohioans of actively making the choice to vote for Evil. It now seems a fait accompli Ohio will join Michigan in voting to kill babies in the womb all the way up to birth, but we must pray for a miracle that our brothers and sisters in Ohio may be delivered of this result in November! God Save America!

Exciting Fall Events

In this newsletter, you will see the flier for the 2023 Legislative Luncheon on Saturday, October 28 at Burton Manor in Livonia. The 2023 Luncheon is a very special one as we welcome legendary pro-life icon Frank Pavone to discuss "How do we protect the unborn & change hearts & minds in a pro-abortion state?" The event will also feature two representatives from the local clergy to provide invocations and offer local perspectives on the life issues in 2023. Tickets are now available, there is limited space, and an Early Bird ticket price is in effect for a brief time, so call the Wayne Chapter office to charge by phone or mail in a registration form to pay by check ASAP!

The 2023 CIDER Walk will stick to the great formula developed in 2022. St. Rafka Maronite Church in Livonia will again host and cider, doughnuts, educational materials, and family fun will be on hand. The walk includes activism as we will loop past the Livonia Planned Parenthood abortion mill. Saturday, October 7 is the likely date, but please check miLIFESPAN.org or call our Chapter for the latest.

Wee Care

Thank you for making all of this possible!
God bless you! Love, Karen

Boy! Did this summer go quickly! I can't believe that soon I will be adding snowsuits and warm clothing to our layettes. Guess the summer months speed by because there are no down times – no lazy days of summer – June, July and August are always filled with many precious Wee Care babies!

One of the babies we are helping today is due this week. This little guy's mom is going through a rough time. He is her first baby and everyone in her immediate family is deceased. The "baby-daddy" is totally out of the picture and she feels very alone. She is struggling to be independent, but needs some help. (Probably the best gift we can give her is the knowledge that others care.)

I will certainly remind her when she picks up her packages that she is not alone and that every item she receives comes with your love and prayers for her and her little son.

YOUTH REPORT

Dear Friends of Life – students of all ages, parents, teachers, campus ministers, assistant principals, principals, school presidents, youth ministers, young adult leaders, DRE's, church administrators, deacons, pastors, and priests:

Thanks to the support we received through some donations to LIFESPAN so far this year, we were happy to sponsor seven young people to attend the annual Protect Life Michigan Life Advocate Intensive Training in Grand Rapids from August 10-12th! We will share with you their experiences and pictures from the training next month! Six of the students are young adults, one of the students is in high school (11th grade).

Caravan for Life summary by Kathryn:

This year we decided to start the caravan at two different locations, Shrine Grade School and St. Mary Church, which would then meet up and combine at Campus Martius before we made it to our final destination at Assumption Grotto. We began to meet, set up and decorate our cars with signs at around 10 am. There were gray clouds in the sky and we had some concerns about rain, however for the duration of our caravan, the sky stayed dry and we were able to carry on without worry. We said a prayer before we left and Father blessed our cars with holy water as we left. We got many supportive honks on our journey and when we got to our meeting point, our two caravans joined seamlessly before making it to our final destination. Once we made it to Assumption Grotto we met at the grave of the unborn where we stood in silence before ending the caravan with another prayer.

If you were not able to join us this year, please let us know you would like information for next year by emailing Kathryn at the email below and she will keep you posted of our plans. Put in the subject line: 2024 Caravan.

There are some flyers enclosed in this Newsletter for some of our upcoming events: Movement in Motion Youth Bus Trip to Washington, DC (registration begins in September) and the National Day of Remembrance of Aborted Children (September 9th)! You can participate in all of these with your family and friends, youth groups, school groups, neighbors, co-workers and faith communities! Please help us spread the word!

How do you respond to those who say that taking mifepristone is “safer than taking Tylenol”?

By Randall K. O'Bannon, Ph.D.

Editor's note. Chemical abortions [“medication abortions”] now account for the deaths of over 50% of the babies lost to abortion. There are many reasons for the huge increase but likely at the top is the blatant lie that “medication abortions” are “safe” and, indeed, “safer than taking Tylenol.”

We asked Dr. Randall K. O'Bannon, NRLC's Director of Education & Research, to address this defense of the first of the two drugs that make up medication abortions.

Considered in terms of deaths per dose, it simply isn't so. What you have here is a not-so-clever statistical sleight of hand. Advocates try to get you to compare the number of deaths from a relatively lightly used product with one that is used billions of times by people every year.

We are told that about 150 American die from Tylenol use every year, usually by overdose or simply taking too much over an extended period of time. At the same time, the FDA tells us that there have been 28 deaths that we know of among American mifepristone patients since the drug was approved in 2000.

So, 28 deaths from mifepristone in twenty years against 150 deaths from Tylenol in just a single year's time? Sounds like mifepristone is safer.

But wait. That's 150 Tylenol deaths against a backdrop of 25 billion doses of Tylenol in a year. We're told that there have been only 5.6 million total chemical abortions with mifepristone in the U.S. since that 2000 approval. That is less than a thousandth of the sales of Tylenol in a single year.

Note what this does to your risk factor.

Using the minimal figures provided by the FDA, your risk of dying from taking mifepristone is about 1 in 200,000. Not large, but not negligible. And remember that your risk of a complication putting you in the emergency room is closer to one in 10.

But your risk of death from Tylenol is actually something like one chance in 166.7 million, even including those who overdose and fail to follow the manufacturer's instructions.

This means that your risk of dying from mifepristone is about 833 times your risk of dying from Tylenol!

The statement that mifepristone is safer than Tylenol is clearly false.

From the President's Desk

Summer is winding down and the fall leaves will soon be showing their bright colors. God's world is doing as He planned. It is a time that I contemplate the seasons of life. There is a time and season for every stage of our lives. I have often put the seasons into years of 25. Our first 25 are Spring: new life with all its hopes and dreams for the future. The next 25, Summer, is when those dreams and hopes are nurtured and brought to fruition. The next 25 years, Fall, is the season in which we enjoy more fully the life we cultivated. We have more wisdom to fully understand and use the gifts God has given us. The last 25 years comes our Winter. It is a time of slowing down and looking ahead to the next phase of our life, which if lived properly, will be heaven. All these stages bring a different kind of experience; some being joyful and full and other times, sorrow and emptiness. But whatever stage we are in, we must never forget that as long as we have breath in our lungs and our heartbeats, we can love and do something for our fellow man.

What season are you in? Each one has its own challenges and demands. I ask you to evaluate what you could do for God's children through your membership in LIFESPAN. If you are in Spring or Summer of your life, can you help with our Youth or Wee Care Programs? Could you help in attending and/or helping to organize events in your Chapter? Maybe attend Pro-life Rallies, Marches, Walk for Life, Chalk for Life Day, etc. and promote these events within your circle of Friends and Family? What gifts has God given you that you can share with the pro-life cause? If you are in the Fall of your life, maybe you have more time to take on more of a leadership role - new ideas keep an organization young and vital. Or, maybe you are able to recruit new members and get more of our Newsletters out to the public. Contacting your legislator and keeping them informed is important. Of course, supporting us financially is a way for us to promote programs and events to keep this issue in the forefront of the public square. Then comes the Winter of our lives, which will sometimes bring us physical and mental limitations. Whatever your limitations are, there is still something you can do. Attending events, letter writing, giving baby pins to your grandchildren with a small explanation, and if you're on the internet, use social media for educating. And, most importantly, in all stages of our lives, prayers are needed. Prayers for the women contemplating abortion, prayers for women who have had abortions and now suffer, prayers for those who work in LIFESPAN and other pro-life groups that they may be able to change hearts and minds.

Yes, no matter what season you are in you can make a difference. Start now - share this Newsletter with someone. Point out the membership coupon and encourage them to support us. Let them know that this Newsletter will come into their homes (10 issues a year) and will help them to have the tools to speak out for LIFE! Assure them LIFESPAN DOES NOT SELL OR SHARE OUR LIST WITH ANYONE.

May God give us all the courage, health, and strength to continue this most vital work. - Diane Fagelman, President

"I just had to shut my conscience down. The doctor was grotesque. He whistled show tunes. I could hear the vacuum sucking out the fetus alongside his whistling. When I hear show tunes now, I shudder. Later, he lost his license."

Then

"A few months ago, I got pregnant again. My in-laws have been helping us out financially, so we have no choice but to involve them in our decisions. They gave us $500 cash to bring to the clinic. I felt very forced. I felt like I was required to have an abortion to provide for my current family. Money help is a manipulation. I'm crazy in love with my daughters - imagine if I did that to them? It's almost too much to open the door of guilt and shame because it'll all overcome me. In the waiting room, there was a dead silence that's hard to describe. Everyone was holding in her emotions to a heartbreaking degree."

Heather ends,

"Truly pro-life people should go light on the judgment, because shame motivates abortions."

Pro-lifers already do go "light on the judgment." The pro-lifers I know - and I know many - are a tender-hearted lot. More than a few have experienced an abortion in their extended families.

But whether or not they have a personal experience, they have the same objective: to help a post-abortive woman heal, not to further hurt her. How could going "heavy" on the judgment possibly help anyone or accomplish anything?!

Over and over again, the stories weep with pain and regret and remorse.

Perhaps the most revealing comment of all came from "Alex, 24," who began her story

"I'm pro-choice, but for some reason I still hold a stigma for people who've had multiple abortions, and yet I've had multiple."
